HAWK
1962

FOREWORD

1959 through 1962 were filled with many changes and experiences for all of us--students, faculty, and editorial staff.

In making the '62 Hawk, it is our intention to present a few glimpses of this passing cenerama . . . some of the people . . . some of the places . . . some of the events.

Thus, we proudly present the 1962 Hawk.

Members of the Class of '62
Johnston County Training School
Smithfield, North Carolina

Greetings:

It is a source of genuine pleasure for me to congratulate you on the eve of your graduation from high school and to wish for each of you every possible success. Nothing gives me more consolation as your Principal than the signing of your diplomas, indicating the approval of the Superintendent, the Board of Education, and the members of the faculty in your achievements to date.

We are hopeful that as many of you as possible will continue your formal training above high school. If you cannot go to college, we trust that you will be successful in finding employment from which you will be able to make an honorable living. However, you should explore all of the possibilities for scholarship before giving up your plans for further training. Just remember that if you really want to go to college now and have the ability to pursue a college education, a way can be found. Your personal determination is the most important factor.

Have great faith and you will accomplish great things. One who possesses little faith usually accomplishes little things.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "W. R. Collins". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of the first and last names being capitalized and prominent.

Class History

In the year of 1958 a large group of space astronauts came together to hold a very serious meeting, because they had heard that there were some good elements of "Quality Education" at Johnston County Training School.

This group of young astronauts had heard so much about what it was like to travel through space that they decided 1959 would be a very good time to explore the universe.

Approximately one hundred ten of us packed our bags and crowded into the space ship for our first trip into outer space. First, we stopped by Mars where we found a town called Freshmanite. Here we decided to take a nine months' rest. We had our leaders: Ivan Cox, President; Allen Eason, Vice-President; Dorothy Sellars, Secretary; Lynwood Bell, Treasurer; Angenette Cox, Reporter; and Joyce Williams, Assistant Secretary; our guides were: Mrs. Watts, Miss Williams, Miss Bonner, Mr. Greene and Mr. Ennis.

We were well represented in all of the various activities that took place on Mars. We enjoyed our trip to Mars and some of us liked it well enough to stay on while the majority of the astronauts continued on to Saturn, where we found a place called Sophomoreville.

In Sophomoreville we lost four of our guides, they were replaced with two new guides, Miss Jones, Mr. Greene, and Mr. Murphy.

Here we felt we should follow the planet's motto: "Every Child a Chance." New leaders were elected: Peggy Moore served as President; Allen Eason, vice president; Joyce Williams, secretary; and Marvin Sanders, as treasurer. Lois Johnson was crowned Miss J.C.T.S.; Jean Smith was crowned Miss N.H.A. and Johnetta Reddick was crowned Miss Versatility.

We realized that time was valuable so we left behind those who were not quite ready to leave and traveled on to Mercury. We landed in a town known as Juniorsburg. We lost another guide who was replaced by Miss Bonner.

Our leaders were: Lynwood Bell, President; Edward Blackmon, vice president, Jean Smith, secretary; Joyce Williams, assistant secretary; Marvin Sanders, treasurer; and Peggy Moore, as reporter.

During our stay on Mercury, we gave many dances. One was called the "Roaring Twenties." To celebrate our start of the trip, Marian Williams was chosen, "Miss Hawks Observer." Six of our astronauts were members of the National Honor Society. Then came the night everyone had been waiting for, the night of the Junior-Senior Prom. On April 28th every Junior was very proud to walk over the bridge into the elaborate "Oriental Gardens." It was really a night never to be forgotten.

We journeyed next to the Moon, where we stumbled on the great city of "Senior Superiority." By this time we were all ready for business! Immediately we elected our leaders: Robert Benton, president; Marvin Sanders, vice president; Jean Smith, Corresponding secretary; Lois Avery, Recording secretary; and Joyce Williams, as treasurer.

After electing our leaders we drew up plans for our senior year and carried them out accordingly.

During our successful trip through space we owe our gratitude and thanks to our most wonderful faculty members and our devoted parents.

With this combined interest, we have built the foundation for our future.

Class Prophecy

Well, it's vacation time again and I have just received notice from the head office that I have been given a full month's vacation with pay.

I, Lois Johnson, supervisor of nurses, was not surprised to have received this notice because this is my third year at Blair Hospital in East Orange, New Jersey.

Since I have been working here, various classmates of mine from Johnston County Training School have worked here also. Who are they? . . . Joyce Williams, Catherine Hines, Delores King, Lois Avery, Doris Turner, Linda Sanders, Jeanetta Sutton, Margaret Holden and Janet Whitley. They are all registered nurses.

Knowing that this would be the last day for at least a month before I would see my fine co-workers, I said good-bye with tears in my eyes.

On Monday, I boarded a plane to New York to see my favorite dress designer, Miss Marie Langston, whom I have constantly kept in contact with since our graduation. Marie and I had lunch together and I told her of my plan to see our high school classmates in order to see what type of life everyone has made for himself. So, I asked her if she knew where any of the alumni live. Very pleased to do so, she began by telling me that the new pharmacist in her community was our Marshall Nixon.

Eager to see Marshall, I finished lunch and went to see him immediately. Because he had just arrived in town, Marshall could not help me very much. So we chatted for a long while and I left feeling perfectly wonderful. I then returned to Marie's and she invited me to stay with her for the night. During the night, Marie remembered that she had read in the morning paper that the Fieldcrest Research Plant had recently hired a graduate of JCTS, class of '62, but she could not recall the name of the graduate.

The next morning as we had breakfast, I told Marie that I would keep in touch with her about my accomplishments and reluctantly said good-bye.

Arriving at the Fieldcrest Research Plant, I asked about the student who was a graduate of JCTS and a member of the class of '62. And to my surprise, there was more than one. Marvin Sanders was a research chemist, Lynwood Bell, a chemical engineer and Gilmore Clark, an engineer. The boys were a great help to me because they told me that I could find Hollywood's finest lawyers, James Anderson and Charles Mitchell, on Sunset and Vine; the finest photographers, Thurman Chappell and Cardell Vinson on North Eighteenth Street. Ecstatically, happy to have seen Marvin, Lynwood and Gilmore, we parted and I went immediately to see Charles and James who were both working for the same firm and very well established. I soon left and went to North Eighteenth Street to see Thurman and Cardell. Their studios were breath-taking. In our conversation, the boys told me that I could find Allen Eason and Robert Benton five blocks away as dentists. I caught a taxi and went to the address which the boys had given me. Allen was well established and had five patients when I arrived. I only stayed with him a few minutes and went two blocks further to see Robert. Robert had just started his business but he was doing as well as could be expected for a beginner. Robert told me that I could find Edward Blackmon at the Royster Foundation for legal monopolies as the head accountant in Las Vegas.

Boarding the plane for Las Vegas and finding my seat was no trouble at all. But who do you suppose I sat beside? None other than actor, David Dew.

David and I talked all the way to Las Vegas and he gave me two complimentary tickets to his Broadway show that was premiering on the 12th of June.

I finally arrived at my destination and went quickly to the Royster Foundation. When I entered, I was shocked, for the receptionist was Louella Lewis. Louella led me to the next door and there I saw Ruby Barbour, Joyce George, Julia Watson, Elizabeth Hooks, Lucy McCullers and Lucy Sanders as typists. Louella then directed me to Edward's office.

Edward was indeed surprised to see me for it had been too long since we had seen each other. Edward was very helpful to me for then he told me that Carl Watson was a well established businessman with a well-known insurance firm on Kilborne Street.

Leaving Edward and the others I continued looking for my classmates.

Entering the large building on Kilborne Street, I began to look for Carl's office. It wasn't very hard to find. As I entered the room I was shocked because the secretary behind the desk was Jean Smith. Jean and I talked until Evelyn Sanders entered to get some materials.

Talking to Jean and Evelyn was quite interesting because they told me that Minnie Monk, Peggy Moore, and Alice Watson were working at Charles' Restaurant and Motel as dietitians. So, leaving Evelyn and Jean, I walked down to the exclusive restaurant-motel. The girls were busy in the kitchen and I did not prolong my visit.

Walking down James Street in Las Vegas, I passed an interesting beauty salon; SOUTHERN BEAUTY SALON. Realizing that the heat had caused my curls to droop, I decided to enter.

Upon entering, I was amazed because before my very eyes stood Bettie Williams, Roxie Barbour and Geneva Holder. Geneva gave me a lovely style and I told her who I had seen on my journey and that now I was ready to return to New York.

Boarding the plane from California, I found out that Clyde Lucas and Lawrence Winston were in charge. Imagine my life in Clyde and Lawrence's hands!!!

After taking my seat, I noticed that there were at least twenty men around me. Being as inquisitive as I am, I asked a young man what was going on and to my reply, he told me that the U.S. Sociology Association was having its annual meeting in New York.

Reclining in my seat, I watched the men enter and to my surprise, entered Louis Vinson, Walter Barbour, and James Otis Williams, who were all sociologists.

Returning to Marie's penthouse on Friday, I felt satisfied. I told her all about our classmates. She had seen a few since she had last seen me. They were Rev. Charles Stokes and famous baseball player, Thomas Smith. She also told me that Marian Williams, Johnetta Reddick, Mark Stevens and Angenetta Cox were teachers at C. H. Watson High School in New York City.

Leaving Marie on Sunday for New Jersey, I saw Juanita Denning who, as a barber, was employed at Sapp's Barber Shop. She told me that her co-workers were Clarence Davis and Donzell Sapp.

Unhappy because I was unable to see Clarence Davis and Donzell Sapp, I sent my love and best wishes to them.

Arriving in New York at 2:30 P.M., I called the hospital and told the girls that I had returned from my trip. Anxious to hear about my visits and travels, we stayed up practically all night. The girls told me that I would be surprised when I return to work on Monday.

Eager to get to work Monday morning, I dressed as quickly as possible. To my surprise we had a new physical therapist. I could hardly believe my eyes. I'm sure you wouldn't have believed yours either because he was none other than William Eason.

Having seen all of the students with whom I had been graduated in '62, I felt happy to know that all were well and making a good life!!!

Class Poem

To the school we love so dear,
We regret to leave you here
Although our troubles have been few
We'll cherish memories of you.

To our parents your patience you have shown
For you have never left us alone
Your sacrifices are far from few
But there is no way that we can thank you.

To the principal and teachers too
We will always remember you
You, who have taught us in every way
All the things we know today.

To the underclassmen loving and true
Hopes of success we leave with you
And may you someday reach this goal
That the seniors of '62 are seeking to hold.

Each of us is on our way
Hoping to reach success someday
Our goal we have set so high
We're determined to reach it by and by.

Margaret Holden
Walter Williams

Class Song

Tune: God of our Fathers

I

Dear training school, oh how we hate to go,
But with our trust and faith in thee we must.
Dear training school, your teachings we will hold.
And our memories will never grow old.

II

There is a space way in our hearts for you,
Those who have been loving, kind and true.
Those who have helped us each and every day
In starting us on our successful way.

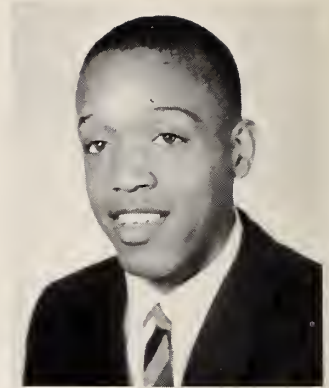

III

Even though we have to leave you now
We shall return someday, somehow,
And so we leave with tears in our eyes
For we regret to say goodbye.
